A numeric keypad interface with a light gray background. The keypad consists of a 3x3 grid of buttons. The first row contains buttons with the numbers 4, 5, and 6. The second row contains buttons with the numbers 7, 8, and 9. The third row contains buttons with the letters C, 0, and a delete icon (a black square with a white 'x'). Below the grid are two buttons: a white button labeled 'CANCEL' and a dark gray button labeled 'DONE'. A green circle is drawn around the 'DONE' button. In the bottom right corner of the interface, there is a vertical stack of two circular buttons, each containing a magnifying glass icon.

The screenshot shows a web interface for a timecard. On the left, there is a large white rectangular area, likely for a photo or a message. Below this area is a small control bar containing two arrow buttons (up and down) and the text "Page 1 of 1". At the bottom of the interface, there are three buttons: "Timecard", "Cancel", and "Clock-In". The "Clock-In" button is dark grey and is circled with a green line. To the right of these buttons is a vertical sidebar with two magnifying glass icons.
